Thank You for Your Membership

On behalf of the SAMPE North America Executive Officers and Board of Directors, thank you being a valued member of the Society for the Advancement of Material and Process Engineering (SAMPE®).

I would like to remind you of our programs and encourage you to get involved. Please take a moment to browse this Member Benefits Guide, designed to reacquaint you with the various activities SAMPE offers.

As with any professional society, the greatest value of being a member lies within the opportunities provided, which empower you to connect with other advanced materials and processes professionals. This community is driven by involvement from you and every volunteer who wishes to build up their own career, as well as the industry as a whole.

A large part of being involved with SAMPE is networking and creating connections at any level of the professional world, benefiting you both professionally and personally. I encourage you to become involved on a committee, as this can be a very rewarding experience and a great way to expand your network and build upon your public speaking and leadership skills. For our student members, I highly recommend becoming a president or leader in your chapter and getting involved with some of our student programs.

We are excited to see and support all that you achieve and contribute to our educational community.
